OPPORTUNITY

Director of Development

DUNDEE HERITAGE TRUST

"Heritage is not what we inherit from our ancestors, but what we pass on to future generations."

Director of Development

Salary: £75,000 – £80,000 per annum

Contract: Full-time, permanent

Location: Mostly remote, with offices in Dundee

At the heart of Dundee City and within the heart of its people sits Discovery Point, the home of the Royal Research Ship Discovery -the world famous ship which took Scott and Shackleton to the Antarctic. Protecting its future lies with Dundee Heritage Trust which is a charity dedicated to preserving and sharing Dundee's rich cultural and scientific heritage. It also operates Verdant Works, an 1833 flax and jute mill which tells the story of the industry which defined Dundee for almost 200 years.

The Trust holds endless stories about these two visitor attractions that have drawn international audiences for decades. It's also keen to explain the link between the past and the future. What a gift for any fundraiser.

The Trust is looking for a new, outstanding Director of Development to lead a strategy around major gifts and to support the fundraising team to expand existing income streams. You'll need to be a major gift expert with broad fundraising knowledge and have experience of leading a team. You'll also be part of the Senior Leadership Team so you will need to be able to support the overall strategic growth of the organisation. It'll place you at the centre of the charity and within the key decision making functions.

An incredible opportunity to work for a charity which has a compelling mission and vision for the future.
